an insightful and powerful analysis of the forces driving global politics today and into the next century in the summer of 1993 foreign affairs published an article entitled the clash of civilizations by samuel huntington no article according to the editors of that distinguished journal had generated more discussion since george kennan's article on containment in the 1940s now huntington expands on his article explores further the issues he raised then and develops many new penetrating and controversial analyses in the article he posed the question whether conflicts between civilizations would dominate the future of world politics in the book he gives his answer showing not only how clashes between civilizations are the greatest threat to world peace but also how an international order based on civilizations is the best safeguard against war samuel huntington explains how clashes between civilizations are the greatest threat to world peace but also how an international order based on civilizations is the best safeguard against war events since the publication of the book have proved the wisdom of that analysis the 9/11 attacks and wars in iraq and afghanistan have demonstrated the threat of civilizations but have also shown how vital international cross civilization cooperation is to restoring peace as ideological distinctions among nations have been replaced by cultural differences world politics has been reconfigured across the globe new conflicts and new cooperation have replaced the old order of the cold war era essay from the year 2013 in the subject politics general and theories of international politics grade a webster university language english abstract this critical review examines samuel p huntington's 1993 article titled the clash of civilizations in this article huntington 1993a argues that in the wake of the fall of the berlin wall international relations would no longer be dominated by an ideological conflict as was witnessed during the cold war years between capitalism and communism nor would the next pattern of conflict be dominated by state to state tensions instead as huntington argues the world would witness a clash of civilizations between a western civilization and other major civilizations in particular an islamic civilization and a confusion civilization huntington makes valid arguments in terms of what international relations would not be dominated by however the argument that a clash of civilizations based on cultural differences between the west and other civilizations is a simplistic hypothesis born out of a realist cold war paradigm

Abstract: Indeed, if one reconsiders the devastating terrorist attacks of 9/11 and the war in Iraq, some might recognize evidence of the clash of civilisations occurring, pitting Western and Islamic civilisations against each other. Rajendram (2002, p. 217) in order to underscore his rather pessimistic thesis, Huntington provides six causes of conflicts between civilisations: such as different views and values, the growing awareness of different civilisations among the people, the weakening of nation states and the replacement of national identity by religion. Huntington (1993, pp. 25-26) furthermore he argues that non-Western countries will increasingly turn away from Westernization due to an increasing indigenisation and that cultural characteristics and differences are less mutable and hence less easily compromised and resolved than political and economical ones. Huntington (1993, p. 27) finally he points to the growth of economic regionalism contributing to the cohesiveness of various civilisational groups. O'Hagan (1995, p. 20) it is because of these reasons that the most important conflicts of the future will occur along the cultural fault lines separating these civilisations from one another. Huntington (1993, p. 25) Huntington not only provided a prediction model for future conflicts, moreover he intends to introduce a new superior paradigm to the realist paradigm. Huntington (1996, p. 34) there are only few theoretical models in the recent history of international relations that received such a plethora of multidisciplinary response as the clash of civilisations. The intention of this paper is not to give a comprehensive review of the arguments for or against the clash of civilisations nor will it refute the thesis of Huntington; rather this paper will analyze if the clash of civilisations as predicted by the end of the cold war which occurred early in the 1990s brought joy and freedom to millions but it posed a difficult question to the world's governments and to the academics who studied them: how would world order be remade in an age no longer dominated by the competing ideologies of capitalism and communism? Samuel P. Huntington was one of the many political scientists who responded to this challenge by conceiving works that attempted to predict the ways in which conflict might play out in the 21st century. And in the clash of civilizations he suggested that a new kind of conflict, one centred on cultural identity, would become the new focus of international relations. Huntington's theories greeted with scepticism when his book first appeared in the 1990s, acquired new resonance after 9/11. The clash of civilizations is now one of the most widely set and read works of political theory in US universities. Huntington's theories have also had a measurable impact on American policy. In large part this is a product of his problem-solving skills. Clash is a monument to its author's ability to generate and evaluate alternative possibilities and to make sound decisions between them. Huntington's view that international politics after the cold war would be neither peaceful nor liberal nor cooperative ran counter to the predictions of almost all of his peers, yet his position, the product of an unusual ability to redefine an issue so as to see it in new ways, has been largely vindicated by events ever since.

In 1993 Samuel P. Huntington boldly asserted in the pages of Foreign Affairs, the preeminent magazine on foreign policy and international relations that world politics was entering a new phase one in which cultural differences in religion history language and tradition were replacing cold war tensions and would soon become the world's fundamental points of conflict huntington's striking thesis elicited both criticism and praise from the media and political experts around the world more than a decade later the clash of civilizations continues to be a touchstone in global politics as writers passionately debate its merits and propose countertheories of their own this collection presents the original seminal essay followed by critical responses published in foreign affairs including the author's reply to his critics and contemporary additions to the enduring question of how to understand world conflict abstract in this study i investigate an array of aspects concerning cultural conflict i use samuel huntington's civilizations from his theory of a clash of civilizations 1993 as a means of identifying different cultures taking advantage of an expanded data set that was not available to huntington and most of his critics i not only review his theory but advance well beyond it exploring additional matters such as the distribution of cultural conflict its intensities underlying issues and resolution techniques i find support for a number of arguments including the following different civilization conflicts are more prevalent than those between same civilization states even though in general there is a higher likelihood of same civilization rather than different civilization conflict this cross cultural militarized conflict does not permeate all civilizations at the international level but rather is principally limited to only a few the cultures most prone to inter cultural conflict are islam and the west while the sinics chinese are among the least prone and while cultural differences play a role in this type of conflict such issues are not among those that most frequently lead to serious conflict or war i also find though contrary to expectations that cross cultural dyads seek peaceful solutions to their differences more often than same culture dyads they have about the same success rate and neither third party assistance nor bilateral negotiating techniques present a particular advantage for resolving different culture conflict this volume brings together a broad range of foreign affairs content to commemorate the twentieth anniversary of samuel huntington s classic article the clash of civilizations huntington s essay argued that culture rather than ideology or geopolitics would be the driving source of international conflict in the post cold war era it struck a nerve because it raised important and uncomfortable subjects in direct and powerful ways two decades on the jury is still hung with critics and defenders passionately arguing the piece s merits and demerits agreeing only on its enduring significance both as a marker of its times and a theoretical perspective that demands serious engagement we believe that readers should make up their own minds about how well his argument does and doesn t hold up so we ve pulled together the original article a broad range of responses from prominent commentators huntington s response to his critics a recent retrospective analysis by richard betts eulogies of huntington from stephen peter rosen eliot cohen zbigniew brzezinski and henry rosovsky and a video of a celebration of huntington s career featuring reminiscences from some of his students including cohen francis fukuyama and fareed zakaria an introduction by foreign affairs editor gideon rose sets the stage for the debates that follow the relationship between western democracies and islam rarely entirely comfortable has in recent years become increasingly tense a growing immigrant population and worries about cultural and political assimilation exacerbated by terrorist attacks in the united states europe and around the world have provoked reams of commentary from all parts of the political spectrum a frustrating majority of it hyperbolic or even hysterical in the fear of barbarians the celebrated intellectual tzvetan todorov offers a corrective a reasoned and often highly personal analysis of the problem rooted in enlightenment values yet open to the claims of cultural difference drawing on history anthropology and politics and bringing to bear examples ranging from the murder of theo van gogh to the french ban on headscarves todorov argues that the west must overcome its fear of islam if it is to avoid betraying the values it claims to protect true freedom todorov explains requires us to strike a delicate balance between protecting and imposing cultural values acknowledging the primacy of the law and yet strenuously protecting minority views that do not interfere with its aims adding force to todorov s arguments is his own experience as a native of communist bulgaria his admiration of french civic identity and western freedom is vigorous but non nativist an inclusive vision whose very flexibility is its core strength the record of a penetrating mind grappling with a complicated multifaceted problem the fear of barbarians is a powerful important book a call not to arms but to thought the clash of civilizations focuses on conflict and cooperation between and within states dealing with the clash is essential for a peaceful and harmonious world the clash of civilizations is a topic of great interest around the world and constitutes an important dimension of religion and international relations in the quarter century since huntington first aired his controversial framework inter civilizational clash and dialogue have become mainstream issues both in international relations and in many western countries domestic concerns the book examines a key question how does samuel huntington s clash of civilizations paradigm help explain current western governments responses to muslim migration and related security issues understanding relations between the west westerners and muslim majority societies muslims is impossible without being aware that right wing populist politicians in the west as well as some policy makers and commentators seem to view all muslims in a malign way this indicates a lack of willingness to make a distinction between on the one hand the mass of moderate ordinary and peaceful muslims and on the other hand a small minority of islamist extremists and even smaller number of islamist terrorists the result is a crucial topic of our times how do different civilizations coexist in a small and increasingly congested planet without conflict the chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the review of faith international affairs while globalization unifies the world divisions re emerge within it in the form of a spectacular separation between islam and the west how can it be that huntington s contested idea of a clash of civilizations became such a powerful political myth through which so many people look at the world bottici and challand disentangle such a process of myth making both in the west and in muslim majority countries and call for a renewed critical attitude towards it by analysing a process of elaboration of this myth that took place in academic books arts and media comics and hollywood films they show that the clash of civilizations has become a cognitive scheme through which people look at the world a practical image on the basis of which they act on it as well as a drama which mobilizes passions and emotions written in a concise and accessible way this book is a timely and valuable contribution to the academic literature and more generally to the public debate as such it will be an important reference for scholars and students of political science sociology philosophy cultural studies middle eastern politics and islam humanism is appealed to today whenever we want to tackle the conditions of dehumanization in the contemporary world but for humanism to be viable in the twenty first century this book argues it needs to be pluralized employing theoretical historical and sociological arguments this book moves beyond the discourse of critique it engages theories of religion and secularism as well as postmodern postcolonial and decolonial critiques of western humanist projects to uncover the ideas and practices of religious and secular humanisms when they challenge dehumanization in the pursuit of conditions of flourishing for all through studies of the solidarity movement in poland and the anti apartheid movement in south africa the book demonstrates the centrality of humanist traditions to the emergence of religious secular solidarities that transformed the political landscapes of the world by highlighting the instances in which humanisms functioned as checks on each other s absolutist claims the book contends that humanisms supply a constructive path for addressing the challenges of our time a time of radically divided societies and intolerant even violent forms of nationalism a challenge to the critiques of humanism that seek to identify it solely as the legacy of the west as anti religious discourse or relegate it to the domain of power constellations pluralizing humanism highlights the rich plurality of humanist discourses and the need for their mutual engagements it points to humanist ideals as constitutive of politics that can guide our human power because they are irreducible to it as such this book will appeal to social scientists social theorists religious studies scholars and ethicists with interests in religion secularism social movements and humanist thought and practice from huntington to trump argues that the clash of civilizations an idea first raised three decades ago by bernard lewis and endorsed by samuel huntington has created a template for understanding the world which has been adopted by both the united nations and right wing populist politicians in europe and the united states of america haynes traces the development of the clash of civilizations from the colonial period through the end of the cold war and 9 11 and analyzes its effects on society
